

"A Naturalist in Trinidad" is a new book published recently by EBBA member Dr. C. Brooke Worth, with fine illustrations by Don Eckelberry. Dr. Worth spent a number of years in Trinidad and the book describes his experiences and explains his work in virus research. It is written in a refreshing style - we found it highly entertaining - and gives the reader a good idea of what to expect in the way of birds and other forms of nature in Trinidad. We enthusiastically recommend it to all, and hope to publish a review soon in EBBA News. Dr. Worth now lives in southern New Jersey but cannot stay away from the tropics - he tells us that he is soon to depart for four months to Trinidad, after which he will visit several countries in South America.

EBBA Secretary Mrs. Herbert M. Church, Jr. has moved, and members should take note of her new address: 2335 North Edgewood Street, Arlington, Virginia 22201.

Bob McCullough had his banding activities written up very amply in the New Jersey Sunday Herald of Newton, N.J. for September 10, 1967. The article consists of a full page and much of another, with plenty of photographs, and text describing his activities and banding in general. This sort of thing is good publicity for banding and more of us should get our local newspapers interested in writing such articles.

Thomas H. Davis, Jr. writes, "On August 12, 1967 I spotted an adult Ring-billed Gull at Tobay Sanctuary, L.I., N.Y. with a F & W band on its left leg and an orange-red color band on its right. I would be pleased to hear of where this bird was banded and by whom". His address is 86-13 85th St., Woodhaven, N.Y. 11421.

Connie Katholi writes, "When it was discovered in the summer of 1966 that the Purple Martins had deserted their old roost on the peninsula of Davis Creek (South Charleston, W. Va.) and had established a new one on the banks of the Kanawha River a mile and a half away, consternation reigned among the banders for fear their activities the previous year had triggered the move. However, the realization dawned that the Martins had simply gotten the Word - of the coming of Interstate Rt. 64, which in time would bisect their old haunt completely - and they had declined to await relocation!"

Deadline for the next issue is November 15, and we would appreciate receiving material for publication as far in advance of that date as possible. We would like to have the Nov.-Dec. issue in the mail to members early in December, in order to avoid the rush of mail close to Christmas.
