

The New Jersey State Museum as a research facility

It has come to our attention that the New Jersey State Museum has an excellent library and a growing, very fine skin collection. Mr. Donald S. Heintzelman, Curator of Ornithology at the Museum, informed us that this research collection is open to banders and students who would like to make use of this facility.

In addition, the entire banding records of the late Mrs. Elise Dickerson are now located at this facility and may be used by anyone for research purposes. These records cover locations in New Jersey and Rhode Island.

Recent additions to the skin collection come from south of the border (Mexico, South America) and from local collection points. Fall warblers are adequately represented and spring warblers are being collected each year to augment those already available.

The library contains long runs of most publications of interest to banders in addition to many monographs and other research material.

To use this collection, please contact Mr. Heintzelman. The address is: New Jersey State Museum, 205 West State Street, Trenton, New Jersey 08625. He may also be reached by calling 609-292-6330.

ATLANTIC FLYWAY REVIEW (addendum)

The new quarterly schedule of EBBA NEWS causes some changes in the plans for 1971 coverage of this column. The six regional coordinators will remain with some changes.

Region I and II will go into the February 1972 issue. Please see page 251 of September-October 1970 issue for regional breakdown. Region I will be edited by Dr. Norris of the Manomet Bird Observatory, Manomet, Mass. 02346. There is no change for Region II - Dr. Yunick will continue as editor.

Region III and IV will go into the May 1972 issue. See p. 251 as above for breakdown. Region III (New York-Long Island) will now be edited by Mr. Robert DeWire, Mid-Fairfield County Youth Museum, 10 Woodside La., Box 165, Westport, Conn. 06880. Region IV (New Jersey) will now be edited by Fred Schaeffer.

Region V, edited by Chandler S. Robbins will appear in the August 1972 issue, and Region VI edited by Don Clark will appear in November 1972. Quite possibly Mr. Bruce Adams may wish to co-edit Region VI with Don Clark as this is quite an extensive area.
