

birds found were English Sparrows and Starlings, both hole-haunting species, and both objectionable from the bird-lover's standpoint. One entire Star-nosed Mole was found, several White-footed Mice, Meadow Mice and House Mice, two partly grown Brown Rats, several Leopard Frogs, a Wood Frog and a Green Frog, at different times. The boxes are not visited regularly, months sometimes passing without an examination, so that their possibilities have not been fully tested.—JOHN B. MAY, M. D., Cohasset, Massachusetts, March 28, 1928.

Bronzed Grackle Recovery.—Dr. Edward Gould Rowland sends word that one of his Bronzed Grackles (Quiscalus q. aeneus) No. 337800, banded at Norwich, Connecticut, June 6, 1926, was killed in Tyner, North Carolina, on December 23, 1927. Tyner is seventy-five miles south of Portsmouth, Virginia.

A Change of Address.—Members of this Association and others desiring to correspond with the Editor or to submit manuscripts for publication in the Bulletin are asked to note carefully that his address after April, 1928, will be River Crossroads, Peterboro, New Hampshire.
