

Margaret Brooks Hickey

We regret to report that one of our former editors, who served the National Audubon Society in a variety of ways for nine years, died at her home in Madison, Wisconsin, on December 29, 1976. We remember "Peggy" Hickey first from the days when she was Margaret Brooks, a young editorial assistant and later editor of Bird-Lore and Audubon Magazine in the 1930s and early '40s. Bright, friendly, modest, always thoughtful and careful of speech, but scientifically strict, she came often to meetings of the Linnaean Society of New York and took an active part in the affairs of that organization. During those years she edited the Audubon Christmas Bird Count and the Breeding Bird Censuses of Audubon Field Notes: for several years she was the only editor of our journal whose name was listed.

After her marriage to ornithologist Joseph J. Hickey, she made her home in Madison, Wisconsin, where she pursued her editorial career in a variety of ways—predominantly for the University of Wisconsin Press. She was a 30-year bird bander, and shared an active life with her family and far-flung friends. Many times, in recent years, we sought out her editorial advice, and always to our profit. We miss her.

Herbert Krause

Herbert Krause, a former Regional Editor for Audubon Field Notes, died in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, on Sept. 21, 1976. Krause was an active field observer for many years, and was author of the chapter on South Dakota in O. S. Pettingill Jr.'s Bird Watcher's America. He was a frequent contributor to state and national ornithological journals. In 1963 he was a lecturer for the National Audubon Society.

MERLIN BIRDING TOURS

Schedule of 1977 and 1978 Tours:

PALENQUE, MEXICO: Oct. 15–22, 1977

OAXACA, MEXICO: Feb. 18–27

WESTERN MEXICO: Mar. 11–19

BEN FELTNER'S TEXAS EXTRAVAGANZA: Apr. 13–30

S.E. ARIZONA: May 13–21

Ben Feltner has led tours throughout the United States and Mexico since 1962. His ability as a field observer is unexcelled. Ben was initial observer in the rediscovery of the Eskimo Curlew on Galveston Island in 1959.

Dr. Charles D. Fisher spent five years studying birds in the Australian bush. He is pre-eminent as an ornithologist. Dr. Fisher has seen in excess of 4000 species of birds in the wild. No one is better prepared or more capable of leading our Australian tour.

Elaine Robinson has led tours in Texas and Mexico. She is an excellent observer with a knack for finding quality birds.

Merlin Birding tours are designed for small groups. Usually no more than five participants per leader.
