

Regional Reports Pictorial Highlights

Summer 1988

Sedge Wren at South Cape May Meadows, New Jersey, Aug. 12, 1988. The species staged a surprising late-summer incursion this year. Photograph/Bob Mitchell.

Black-necked Stilt near suspected nest site in Throckmorton County, Texas, June 11, 1988. Photograph/Ken Nanney.

Young Great Gray Owls from the nesting in Ashland County, Wisconsin, May 21, 1988. Photograph/Keith Merkel.

Black-throated Sparrow in Geauga County, Ohio, June 19, 1988. Photograph/Robert McCullough.

Adult Little Stint at Gambell, St. Lawrence Island, Alaska, early June, 1988. Photograph/Gary H. Rosenberg.

Merlins (adult with juvenile) on Campobello I., New Brunswick, Aug. 12, 1988. The species is scarce as a breeder this far south in the region. Photograph/Wayne Petersen.

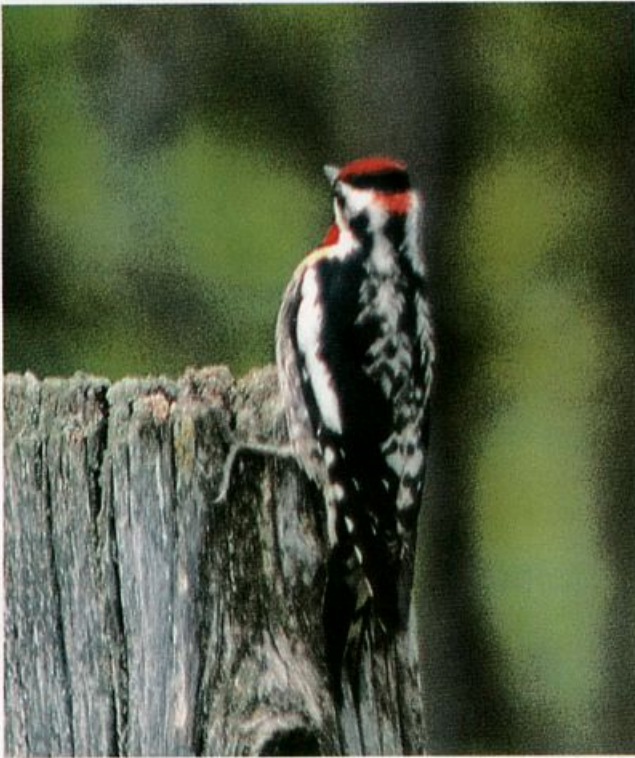

Adult Yellow-crowned Night-Heron at Point Pleasant, West Virginia, July 23, 1988. Photograph/Wendell L. Argabrite.

Western Kingbird above nest at Winn, Michigan, July 9, 1988. Photograph/Bill Bouton.

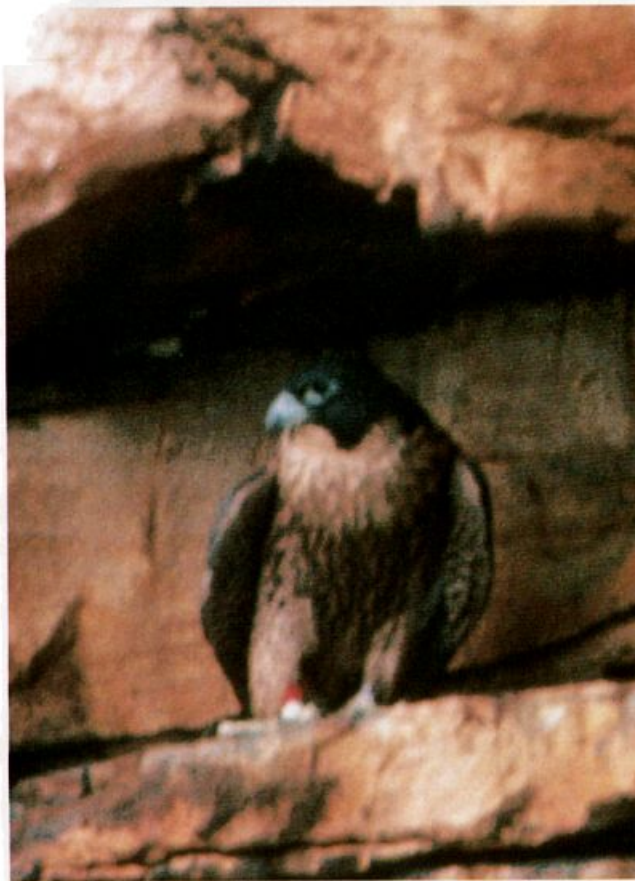

Adult Royal Tern at Chicago's Montrose Harbor, July 13, 1988. Extremely rare inland. Photograph/Robert Hughes.

Adult male Yellow-bellied Sapsucker with red on the nape, found July 4, 1988 at Saint-Jacques de Leeds, Quebec. Photograph/Normand David.

Rock Wren at Centennial, Michigan, July 14, 1988. Photograph/Bill Bouton.

Young Peregrine Falcon at New River Gorge, West Virginia, July 1988. Photograph/Wendell L. Argabrite.

Emperor Goose at Tokeland, Washington, April 24, 1988. Photograph/Don Johnson.

Eat your heart out: Wedge-Tailed Shearwater at the north end of the Salton Sea, California, July 31 (only), 1988. Just the second record for the United States. Photograph/Richard E. Webster.

Sooty Tern near site on lower Laguna Madre, Texas, July 1988. Photograph/Rose and Mike Farmer.

White-rumped Sandpiper at McGrath State Beach, California, June 11, 1988. Photograph/Jim Royer.

Long-toed Stint at Salinas, California, August 30, 1988. Photograph/Gerald Maisel.

Fork-tailed Flycatcher—always cause for excitement in North America—in Douglas County, Wisconsin, June 24, 1988. Photograph/Robbye Johnson.

Rock Wren singing at Churchill, Manitoba, July 1, 1988. A pair nested in the area this season. Even though the species is very rare in Manitoba, it had nested at least once before at Churchill. Photograph/Tony Beck.

Least Grebe on nest in Karnes County, Texas, May 22, 1988. Photograph/Willie Sekula.