

Among the new material at man's disposal for destroying life that seems inimical to his interests is the compound known as "1080" (sodium fluoroacetate). Used as a poison to control rodents and other animals, it has given excellent to phenomenal results. Perfected by the Wildlife Research Laboratories of the Fish and Wildlife Service, 1080 is fortunately under the control of the Service, which recently issued a statement that it will not distribute 1080 "in any form to the general public."

G.I.'s and conservation.—A large number of former servicemen are entering professional conservation training under the provisions of the G.I. Bill of Rights and the Army Rehabilitation program. A sharp increase in the number of students interested in conservation has been reported by several institutions that offer training in the fields of soil, water, forest, and wildlife conservation. Records at Ohio State University indicate that 19 per cent of the students who inquired about enrolling during the fall of 1945 expressed a desire to major in some phase of conservation. A large number of these students are interested in professional careers in wildlife administration, management, or research.—C.A.D.
